THE MEXICAN WAR.

Increasing Hostilities Along the Rio Grande

REBEL VICTORIES REPORTED

A Mexican Officer Who Thinks the Revolt is Against the United States Additional Troops on Both Sides

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 28.—The situation at the border is becoming more serious and it is believed that civil troubles will not be overcome without considerable bloodshed as the revolutionists continue to organize their forces on this side without any apparent fear of interruption by the United States military authorities. Capt. Francis H. Hardie of the United States Third cavalry has been heard from through Capt. John G. Burke who is at present at Fort Ringgold.

The following despatch was received by Assistant-adjutant-general J. P. Martin at military department headquarters here today: "A courier from Captain Hardie at Sal no reports that he has two Mexicans with him who know all the ranches and all the people up there, suspected of complicity in the recent attacks upon Mexican territory. He will search Salieno and adjacent ranches this morning. Second lieutenant George T. Langhorne, of the Third cavalry, left at midnight with twenty men to look for a band of revolutionists said to be skulking in the vicinity of Havana. I have two small detachments out in the vicinity of Palito Blanco and Salieno. I will go out to see Hardie this afternoon as I understand that the Garza men have secret marks upon their clothing by which they identify each other, which it is very important for us to find out. Will you please arrange for good guides and scouts to be attached to each column moving out from here as it is impossible to do anything without them."

General Stanley, commander of this department, sent a number of despatches this evening to the different post commanders along the border, instructing them all to take the field with detachments of their forces and scout for the revolutionists. An order was also issued this evening by General Stanley for the United States troops I and K of the Third Cavalry, stationed at this post, to be prepared to leave for the scene of the trouble at a moment's notice. The transportation and other arrangements are being made for them to leave here on a special train to-morrow evening. They will be distributed along the border at different posts thus strengthening the military guard. The order produced much excitement at the post here, the only available force in the department not now in the field being the four companies of artillery remaining here. In the demand for increased military protection, the entire Ranger force of the state is to be sent to the frontier.

Brigadier-general Stanley received the following despatch from W. H. Mabrey, adjutant-general of the state, this afternoon: "Under directions of the governor, this department will order all the Rangers to the scene of the trouble, and will use every effort to assist the murderers of Corporal Edelston."

Dr. Pintari Ornetas, the Mexican consul here, received a number of important communications from the Mexican authorities this morning. The first one was from Gen. Lorenzo Garcia, who is commander of all the Mexican troops in the field in northern Mexico with headquarters at Mier, Mexico, a small town about sixty miles from the Rio Grande border, in the state of Tamaulipas. The despatch reads as follows:

"I am positively informed that Santos Salinas, residing at Arbello Palo Blanco, Daniel Garcia living at Las Rivera, and Prudencio Gonzales, living at Agua Negra, El Arroyo, all Texas ranches, are protecting and shelter ing the boys of Cherino E. Garza as well as other revolutionists. I send this communication to you in order that, if you deem it convenient, you may bring this information to the knowledge of the proper authorities."

The second telegram was received an hour later and was also from General Garcia. It reads as follows: "I am informed that there is a meeting of revolutionists at Lake, near the ranch of Felipe Gutierrez, six miles north of Rayon, Texas, and another meeting opposite the ranch of Neumiro Perez, on the Rio Grande river. At these meetings there are present Eustaquio Ramon, Gen. Francisco Benavides and Juan Manuel Ramirez is endeavoring to enlist revolutionists at his ranch. I communicate these facts to you in order that if you deem it proper you may bring it to the knowledge of the United States military authorities."

Dr. Ornetas received a telegram from Lameda Diez Mexican consul at Laredo, Texas, which says: "General Reyes, the governor of Nuevo Leon, writes me that he has been informed that in Cara Blanca, Texas, the enlisted revolutionists are gathering in large numbers."

Governor Reyes, this evening telegraphed Dr. Ornetas here as follows: "I am informed that on the night of Dec. 23, there was some kind of festivities at Igris, Tex., and that many people in a state of drunkenness went to the bank of the Rio Grande and insulted the Mexican troops guarding the Mexican side of the river. One of these drunken people shouted across the river killing the Mexican troops and the balance killed him instantly. I do not know whether the man was Mexican or an American.' A telegram was received from Luis Cerron, captain of Mexican cavalry at Nuevo Laredo, Mex., stating that the revolutionists are ordered to meet at Cara Blanca, Tex., in order to be enlisted.

All of these telegrams were at once submitted to General Stanley, who wired them to the war department at Washington.

General Stanley stated this evening to a United Press correspondent that he believed that there is hardly a Mexican on this side of the border but what is thoroughly in sympathy with the revolutionists and is giving them all the aid possible.

INFORMATION FROM GUERRERO.

Laredo, Tex., Dec. 28.—This evening there have arrived of the Mexican troops, coming about 800 men arrived in New Laredo from Saltillo. This seems to prove that the reports of advantages gained by the rebels by Garza are not altogether wrong. These newly arrived troops will proceed down the river at once. It has gained circulation in the city to-night that three revolutionists who were captured by Mexican troops in the skirmish last night were convicted and shot this evening. Inquiry has failed to trace the report to any reliable source. Considerable uneasiness is expressed for a company of United States cavalry which left last Friday for a point down the river without talk to anybody. Nothing has been heard from them since their departure.

The Mexican authorities deny the existence of any serious trouble on Mexican territory. The reports from reliable sources here announce several fights with results favoring the revolutionists. The officers in command of Fort McIntosh claim that the losses have been on the Garza side, parties who know the facts say that the revolutionists have had the best of every engagement.

A SKIRMISH NEAR LAREDO.

San Antonio, Tex., Dec. 28.—Mexican Consul Lameda, at Laredo, has furnished a local paper with a statement in which he claims that Gen. Ruiz Sandoval is in the mountains of Coahuila with a force ready to join Garza. Despite Garza's pronunciamento Lameda makes the remarkable assertion that he is rather inclined to think that Garza's forces are not have been intended more to fight the government of the United States than that of Mexico and points to the fact that the revolutionary recruits have been among the citizens of this country. Garza himself being one of them in spite of his Spanish name and that of most of his followers. Garza claims organized his force on American territory living on it and taking forcibly horses, cattle and forage from American ranches, obtaining ammunition and everything else from this country and finally fights American troops, killing and wounding several of them. The consul further asserts that Garza does not intend to invade Mexico and only crossed the Rio Grande when hard pressed as was the case after the fight with Captain Burkesmun.

Company I, Fourth cavalry, took up the line of march today from Fort McIntosh to assist in capturing the scattered cohorts of Garza in the jungles of the lower Rio Grande.

The Graves Case

Denver, Dec. 28.—In the Graves trial this morning Dr. Graves was recalled to the stand and his cross-examination resumed by Mr. Stevens. The doctor thought he was in Denver after his brother's death two or three days. He did not meet Judge Furman at that time. Mrs. Barnaby was a kindly woman, but she was not easily influenced.

Was she attached to those who did her favors? asked Mr. Stevens.

"I don't know."

When you wrote the guardian letter did you tell your wife about it?

"I don't think so."

Did you tell Mrs. Graves that people came from the Adirondacks and told you about Mrs. Barnaby?

"No."

If you did make such a statement it was untrue?

"I never made it."

A letter was handed to the doctor which he identified as having been written by his wife at his dictation.

"This letter refers to this matter?"

"Yes, there are two letters one dictated by me and the other a note by my wife. One refers to the matter."

"The other one does not?"

"Yes, I must have talked it over with my wife."

"If you had it was equally untrue?"

"I can't answer."

"But nobody from the Adirondacks told you about this matter?"

"No."

"Then it was true that what you told your wife was false?"

"Yes."

Dr. Graves denied having told Mrs. Hickey that if Mrs. Barnaby took her money out of his hands he would have her sent to an asylum. The letter which the doctor had sent Mrs. Barnaby at San Francisco, but which was returned to him through the dead letter office, was again the subject of inquiry by the prosecuting attorney. The envelope of the letter was stamped with three cents. The contents, as exhibited in court, did not weigh enough to require more than the ordinary two cent stamp. The prosecution insinuated that Dr. Graves had replaced the original matter contained in the envelope with a letter which would aid him in his defense. The doctor, however, gave his word of honor that such was not the case. When asked whether on his return to Providence from Denver with Mrs. Barnaby's remains he had drawn a check on her funds for $4,000, the doctor could not remember. Several other things Dr. Graves could not recall or did not know anything about, although they concerned his dealings in the matter of money for Mrs. Barnaby. The prosecution here ended the cross-examination of Dr. Graves.

The defense then did a slight damage by introducing Daniel Smith as a witness. Smith was the hostler who washed Mr. Worrell a buggy the night it contained a bottle of whiskey for Mrs. Barnaby. Smith has previously appeared as witness for the prosecution and the swore that he had not tampered with the package containing the bottle while it was in the livery stable. He was put upon the stand to-day, and contrary to the expectations of the defense, contradicted his former statement that he had not opened the package. The defense then introduced three witnesses to impeach Smith's testimony, but did not succeed to any great extent. E. R. Bertram was the first of the witnesses. He swore that Smith had told him that he had taken a drink from the bottle of whisky while it was in the stable and that it was good whiskey. Bertram on cross examination admitted he had been under arrest three times on different charges. The other two witnesses testified that Smith had said that the hostler could have been will[illegible] if he would. The above witnesses would not have been admitted had not one of the attorneys for the defense given his word that the defense had learned of this testimony only Saturday last. This attorney afterwards admitted to Judge Rising that it might have been a few days earlier that he had learned of it. Mrs. John Conrad was called in rebuttal and swore that Dr. Graves had told her that he thought Edward Bennett, the guide, had sent the bottle of whiskey. A few unimportant witnesses were then examined, when the court adjourned.

A Police Tied Up.

New Orleans, Dec. 28.—The Picayune's San Antonio special says: The entire San Antonio and Aransas Pass railroad system is tied up as a result of a strike inaugurated this morning at 5:30. The operators claim they have been poorly paid and that a system of removals and reductions have been inaugurated by the new superintendent, Geo. Sands, late of the Texas and Pacific. Several station telegraphers' salaries have been cut and the order of Railway Telegraphers appointed a grievance committee to secure the signing of a contract by the management of the road guaranteeing to the operators, during good behavior, at the existing scale of wages. The management refused to meet this and claimed that no general reduction of salaries was contemplated. The demand for telegraphers was backed by all the other operatives, who in this particular road are federated for concerted action. This morning no trains left this city and the paralysis extended over 600 miles of the system.

The Strike Not Failed.

New York, Dec. 28.—The New York, Ontario and Western railroad today formally withdrew from the boycott of the Chicago and Alton railroad which was instituted by the Trunk line and Central Traffic associations. The withdrawal at this time was somewhat of a surprise, as it was understood that the boycott would be raised by both associations in a short time, in accordance with the recommendations of their sub-committees, which met a few days ago and concluded unanimously that the boycott was a failure. The executive committee of the trunk line pool was in report to be in favor to take action on the recommendations of the sub-committee, but the meeting was postponed. This afternoon the Alton officials in this city received the following despatch from their Chicago agent: "The Grand Trunk has issued a circular giving notice that they will lift the boycott and that tickets may now be sold to all points on the road, including Buffalo."

Walt Whitman Better.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—The physicians attending Walt Whitman report that he is in a much better condition to night than he has been since his recent illness. This afternoon he sat up in his bed supported by his nurses and ate quite heartily of broiled mutton chops.

Weather Indications.

Washington, Dec. 28.—For Colorado—Generally fair; warmer; southerly winds; colder Tuesday morning, followed by rising temperature.

THE NEW YEAR GAZETTE.

For many years it has been the custom of THE GAZETTE to issue on New Year morning an illustrated special edition giving such a description of the city as is valuable to those not acquainted with the place, and such as those living here might wish to send to their friends in the east. With each succeeding year it has been our policy to make a more complete showing, and this policy will be continued in the present number. It is possible to do this because each number helps somewhat towards the succeeding one, because the new quarters and enlarged facilities of our new building make it possible to do more and because the increased size of the town gives us more to speak about, as well as more to do with.

The number this year will consist of twenty pages, fully occupied with illustrations and descriptions of the climatic, agricultural, mining and scenic resources of El Paso county and its three principal cities, Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou. A large part of the illustrations will be new and prepared expressly for this issue. Especial attention will be given to the events of the past year, though nothing will be omitted that is necessary for a correct understanding of the cities and county as they are.

A large edition will be printed. Last year warning was duly given that the number of copies was limited and that those desiring them would do well to send in their orders in advance, yet the entire edition was exhausted by 9 o'clock New Year's day and many of those who wished papers were unable to obtain them. This year the number is much larger, but the attractiveness of the features is so great that we are warranted in expecting the same quick sale as last year. As the pages are not stereotyped it will be impossible to print more after the first edition is exhausted. We furnish to-day to our local subscribers order blanks which will be filled on next Friday morning in the order in which they are received. We again request the warning of last year. The edition is limited, and in order to secure copies orders should be sent in early.

SPECIAL FEATURES.

Special features of the number will be:

A complete descriptive article on the Colorado Springs water works system, completed in 1891, with a picture of Lake Moraine, the wonderful mountain reservoir of the city's drinking supply, and a map of the new Pike's Peak forest reservation, showing the streams that contribute for the use of the El Paso county towns, and the mountains from which they draw their supply;

An article on the growth of the city for the past twenty years since its foundation in 1871, showing the different elements which have contributed to the growth of the city and the reasons for believing that the next twenty years will show a growth in equal proportion. This article will be illustrated by a map showing the original townsite of Colorado Springs and the principal additions made to the city and the suburbs, from Austin Bluffs to Broadmoor and Manitou. It will be also illustrated by accurate pictures of some of the larger houses completed in the past year.

An article on the amusements of the city, with new illustrations of the El Paso Club building, the Broadmoor Casino and the Ute Pass hotels;

A complete descriptive article on the new Cripple Creek mines, with a complete and accurate map of the camp, showing the location of streams, mountains, roads, townsites, together with the location of the principal mines. The investment at Cripple Creek of reliable and clear headed business men and the opinions of mining experts of known character and ability is evidence that the Cripple Creek discovery is among the important events, perhaps the most important event of the year. In recognition of this fact THE GAZETTE will present to its readers the most complete article on the camp that has ever been published, the map being prepared with unusual expense and trouble.

The time and expense of preparing the present number have been greater than ever before, and we have good reason to believe that the results will be satisfactory to our readers.

The distinguished but anonymous senator who talks of a war with England over the question of the delimitation of the northwest frontier, is talking distinguished nonsense. There is less probability of war with that country than ever before, and the chances grow less with each succeeding year. The general sentiment in England is distinctly favorable to the United States, and the feeling should be reciprocated by the people of the same race. It is the opinion of many of the greatest men of England that a war between these two nations would not only be one of the most disastrous ones of history, but would be also one of the greatest crimes ever recorded against civilization and the human race. This opinion will find many advocates in this country, outside of the distinguished and anonymous senator. The questions which have already been submitted to arbitration are of as much importance as any that are likely to arise between these two countries, and to say that the settlement of the Behring dispute is simply a postponement of the struggle that is sure to come, sooner or later, is to read history with very blind or with very prejudiced eyes.

It is probably true that the men who are making an attempt to overthrow the government now in power in Mexico have good grounds for complaint. If this revolt is directed against the peon system, we might almost say that it deserves to be successful. A plan which compels a man to work for thirty seven and a half cents a day and keeps him in debt all his life is not far enough removed from slavery to make any appreciable difference to the man who is under the law, and it is scarcely logical to call a country where such a state of things exists a republic. The failure of crops, which occurred in the northern provinces, has no doubt much to do with the discontent and the ease with which the revolutionists find recruits and sympathizers. But because we can see defects in the present political and economic systems of Mexico, we should not fall into the error of supposing that the success of the revolt would be a remedy for the evils. On the contrary the present government is in many respects the best that the country has ever known, and is well supported by the most intelligent portions of the people. It might be that the success of Garza and his sympathizers on both sides of the border might result, like a somewhat similar movement in the old Mexican state of Texas, in adding a rich slice of territory to the United States, but there is fortunately no desire in this country to enrich itself at the expense of its neighbors. We have now a good opportunity to show to Mexico that our friendship is a disinterested one and the prompt and efficient action of the United States government in suppressing these bandits will be heartily approved by the great mass of American citizens.

THE SUNDAY GAZETTE.

The character of the Sunday special edition of THE DAILY GAZETTE is too well known to need description. Its general popularity and increasing sales are the best kind of evidence that it is deserving of the title of "The Best newspaper for Colorado Springs people."

Arrangements have been completed for the addition of features of especial interest for the coming season and others are in progress. Among the articles already secured we may mention the letters of Edgar L. Wakeman, the celebrated correspondent whose foreign letters have been prominent in the American press for a number of years and whose reputation is second to none in this line.

The Wakeman letters will begin in the forthcoming issue of THE SUNDAY GAZETTE and will continue through the year. The first four of Mr. Wakeman's letters of 1892 will tell of a tramp across Portugal from Lisbon to Aymouth. Roadside pictures of Portuguese villages, peasant houses and everyday provincial life will be painted with the same fidelity and charm which have characterized the English letters recently published in this country. Portugal is a country famous for its past achievements and it is outside the beaten lines of travel and inhabited by a most interesting race of people. After those letters will come two describing a week in Morocco, and these will be followed by a letter from Gibraltar, telling of the famous fortress and its surroundings. Majorca and Minorca, the Balearic islands, will next be visited, and then Malta and its people and their life, manners, customs and superstitions will be described. These letters telling of Italian rambles will follow, and then forest travel in Galicia. This is the northeasternmost province of Austria. Its petroleum fields, their workings, and peasant workmen and the home life and customs of the Polish, Ruthenian and Tatras peasantry of this seldom visited region will be attractive subjects for Mr. Wakeman's pen.

Returning to the British Isles Mr. Wakeman will tell of some of the men and women and places familiar to American readers. Altogether the readers of THE SUNDAY GAZETTE will travel with Mr. Wakeman and there could be no better guide though some of the most interesting towns and regions the Old World can show. And they will do this not as strangers might, but learning the secrets of the people's lives, as close friends would do, and gaining from history and tradition the charming glory and sentiment that cluster about the old places where humanity has for so many hundreds of recorded years lived and loved and enjoyed and suffered and fought and died.

The Intense Brilliancy of Lightning.

One consequence of the short duration of lightning is an apparent diminution of its brilliancy. It has been proven that light cannot produce its full effect on the eye unless it remains at least as long as one-tenth of a second; but lightning lasts only the ten-thousandth part of a second, and it follows from this that what we see is 100,000 times less bright than it really is.

When we recollect that even thus diminished its brilliancy is such as to cause temporary blindness if too closely watched, we may feel grateful that we cannot see it in its true vividness, for our human powers of vision would be too weak to bear such a sudden and overwhelming illumination.—Electricity.

Tired Out.

"I thought I was worn out with my tramp among the shops today," said she in a Twenty-third street ferryboat, "until I met a woman carrying a baby wrapped in a large shawl, with a second child not more than two years old dragging at her skirts. She was shopping, too, for in the bare hands clasped around her heavy burden was clutched a pocketbook, and on her arm hung a satchel, evidently to hold small purchases. And when I saw her tired eyes and noted the tension of her frame with the double drag upon her, I decided my fatigue was not to be considered."—New York Times.

HUNTING FOR BEAR.

THE AUTHOR OF "THE STORY OF A COUNTRY TOWN" AS A SPORTSMAN.

His Interest in the Rainfall of the Great American Desert Leads to Interesting Observations—A Big Bear in a Trap—Antelope and Other Game.

[Special Correspondence.]

ATCHISON, Dec. 22.—Having spent most of my life almost within sight of the great American desert, I have been much interested in its development and in the theories of rainfall following settlement. Therefore, during a recent trip to the west, I closely watched the country between the Missouri river at Omaha and the Rocky mountains. For two days I traveled westward on the famous Elkhorn valley route and a man living in Sioux county, Neb., which lies directly north of Deer Trail in Colorado, told me that last winter his cattle wintered on the natural pasture, and that some of the same land will this year produce good crops of corn without irrigation. What is true of this county is equally true of much other land in the northern tier of counties in Nebraska, and I saw fine looking wheat stubble on high, rolling land long after passing the first foot hills indicating the mountains. Indeed in many places in Wyoming I looked upon pines growing on the foot hills and upon wheat stubble growing on the plains below them.

A HUNTING HORSE.

But this is very unusual. Last year the rainfall on the plains of Nebraska and Wyoming was as insignificant as during the driest season of half a century ago. Half the range cattle died during the winter not because the weather was particularly severe, but because there was no grass. Old men in Wyoming told me that the summer of 1890 was the driest they had ever known. They also told me that forty years ago there were wet seasons like the past summer. There is no record of sage brush along the Missouri river between Kansas City and Omaha. I have never known a man who remembered the bunch grass of the plains in the same section of the west. The tallest prairie grass I ever saw is connected with recollections of my boyhood, and I lived then within forty or fifty miles of the Missouri river.

The late census shows that many of the western counties in Kansas and Nebraska have lost population during the past ten years, which means that there has been no increase in the rainfall on the desert during that period. There have been great changes in the desert in the last twenty years, but there has been little perceptible increase in the rainfall. I have no doubt that there were wet summers fifty years ago when wheat could have been grown on the plains of Wyoming and Colorado without irrigation, as was done this year, but they do not seem to be any more frequent now than then. In fact the last two decades have shown a lack of the usual amount of rain. I was informed by old cattlemen in the west that the herds have fallen off two-thirds within fifteen or twenty years, where you see one range cow now you formerly saw three, which would indicate less grass and less rain.

My business in the mountains was to hunt with a cattleman named B. B. Brooks, with whom I had hunted on several other occasions; once in company with Mr. Justice Brewer, now of the supreme court of the United States. Mr. Brewer went out every day and rode hard, but he never carried a gun, he was content with the mountain scenery.

Brooks owns a ranch twenty miles from the railroad in Casper, Wyo., where he has 400 acres of hay land under ditch, and one of the prettiest sights I saw while away was this green valley as I looked upon it from the sage brush hills. When I visited the ranch three years ago I was much interested in a lonely duck, which tried to coax the chickens to play with it in the irrigating ditches, but the chickens wouldn't do it so on my way home I sent out a big drake to keep the duck company. The ranch is overrun with ducks now, and there is talk of exterminating them, as was done with the hounds I sent out. Brooks says that the hounds would chase a deer out of the country, paying no attention to blasts from the horn he learned to play, returning in a few days gaunt and hungry, and looking as though they expected a good deal of praise for hanging on so long.

Twenty miles south of the ranch, in the Rattlesnake range of the Rocky mountains, Brooks had a man named Billy Smith living in a tent to look after a bunch of a thousand cattle. We pitched another tent beside his, and lived with him for twelve days, making horseback excursions into the surrounding country every morning and returning at night. If Brooks and I came back first we got supper, but we usually managed to allow the cowboy to get there first, as he was the best cook. This cowboy interested me. He was born in Texas, and is known as the best roper in that country, yet he never shot anybody in his life, he never even shot off his pistol in town. He told me one day that he had lived on the frontier so steadily that he never paid less than twenty-five cents for a shave.

It was amusing to me to see him getting supper with a pair of clinking spurs on his heels and a cob pipe in his mouth. He was a good looking young fellow and as well behaved a man as I ever knew. His business with the cattle was to ride the country and see that the herd kept in a certain district. He lives alone during the summer, and often kills deer and antelope from the door of his tent. He milks a cow from the herd, and when he went out to milk morning and evening Brooks and I would "do" the dishes, which consisted of tin cups, tin plates, and skillets and pans. We had milk, butter, potatoes, fresh meat and canned goods. The butter was sent up from the ranch by Mrs. Brooks. Morning and evening we had hot biscuit, baked in the oven of a sheet iron stove.

The three of us had twelve saddle horses, nine of which I was afraid to ride, all being of the breed known as "bronks." One of the nine had the habit of falling over backward every morning two or three times before starting out, having amused himself in this manner, he would go the rest of the day peacefully enough. This horse was known as Benign. Brooks and Bell rode him without the slightest concern when his turn came, stepping to the ground when he went over backward. Sometime he took half a dozen falls, and sometimes only two or three, but no one ever rode Benign that he did not go through his odd performance.

The first business we set about was to kill four antelope with which to bait two bear traps. For this purpose we made a trip out onto the plains, taking two pack animals. The long ride made me so indolent that half the time I did not get off my horse when there was game in sight, for we had bad luck in getting the "wind." You can always find antelope, but you cannot always get them. They are very shy from being hunted so much and run on the high ridges where you must reach them by a long and tiresome stalk. But about 1 o'clock I saw a very pretty sight. Thirty or forty antelope started to cross a ridge ahead of us. Brooks galloped furiously up a draw to get within range and killed four in four shots, although they were running at full tilt.

Another remarkable thing was that he picked out bucks, for no true hunter will kill she stock when he can avoid it. After eating a lunch nine miles from water we started out to set the traps over in the bad lands and at 10 o'clock that night I finished the hardest day's work I ever did in my life. Even Brooks confessed that he was tired, which was a great relief to me, for I was so completely played out that I dragged myself off to bed without eating any supper and dreamed of the man who had too much of a good time. For three hours during the afternoon we had packed the antelope on a mule and a horse, and a dead antelope is the most foul-smelling thing I know of. I was compelled to lead the mule, which carried two gutches, and I could not get rid of the sight or the smell of them. I was at sea once, and the only thing I know of that compares with the smell of a dead antelope is the smell of a steamship kitchen.

I heard of a man once who said it was cowardly to trap bears; he said that the true sportsman hunted the bear to his lair and gave him a chance for his life. This rule may apply to ducks and prairie chickens, but it does not apply to bear. We hunted industriously all day and did kill one bear after a chase of several hours, but we found it more satisfactory to set two traps and visit them every other morning, as fishermen go to their trout lines. A bear trap is built of logs in the shape of the letter X. At the apex is placed the bait, usually two antelope, when the bear goes in he wonders what he has stepped in, and finds on investigation that it is a fifty pound steel trap with a log attached to it by a chain. One morning when we approached the woods where a trap was set, the horses showed a very marked desire to keep out and would turn quickly and run back in spite of spur and quirt.

Finally there was a tremendous roar in the woods which sounded exactly like the roar you hear around a menagerie, as we rushed our horses and went in on foot. We soon came in sight of an immense silver tip bear, which had the trap and clog fastened to his left foot. He was a male, about 5 years old and very ugly in his disposition. As soon as he saw us he charged at the party and we ran away, as we desired to take his picture alive with a kodak we carried. He was stopped by the clog becoming tangled in a tree, whereupon he stopped and bit himself and roared in a very fierce fashion. I heard Bill say, "He puts fear in a man all right enough," but for some seconds I was not at all afraid probably the reason was I had great confidence in my companions, who had Winchesters in their hands, I had one too, but I spent my time in admiring the bear.

THE BIG SILVER TIP BEAR.

When the others ran I ran but I always went as near the bear as any of them—to look at him. He was the handsomest beast I ever saw, and the most. Once he came near catching Brooks, who went quite close to press the kodak button on him. Every time the bear made a charge the three men leveled their guns at him. Had the bear got away I have no doubt these three fellows would have loaded him full of holes. It finally turned out that the trap did not have a very sure grip, so they called out to me to shoot. The bear was standing on his hind legs beside two pine trees trying to climb, so I took a rest against another tree and fired. The ball hit him back of the ear, and he sank to the ground as I have seen pigs when shot in the brain. He was stone dead in a minute, when Billy brought up his horse and dragged the carcass out into a bright spot, where we took a picture of him. The bear probably weighed 350 pounds and carried the fifty pound trap around on his paw as a man might carry a clothespin.

Is bear meat good to eat? I have never tried it. Wherever you find buzzards in the mountains you will find bears, they both eat carrion. The people in the mountains do not eat bear meat as a rule and some of them have never tasted it. Bears are very fond of berries, but they will leave a berry patch any time to eat a cow which has died from disease. And the appetite of a bear is enormous. One day Billy Smith was trying to turn a range bull away from the herd, but the bull showed fight and would not go. Finally Billy thought to shoot a few feet ahead of his nose and throw dust in his eyes, but he hit him in the head instead and killed him. That night a bear found the carcass and the next day there was nothing left but the hide and bones. So far as we were able to judge only one bear had been there.

She Had Heard So.

What numbers of facts are still unrecorded in any book?

A teacher was hearing her class in natural history recite, and asked a bright looking little girl:

"What is a ruminating animal?"

"One that chews her cubs," was the innocent reply.—New Moon.

Herrmann To-Night.

Magician Herrmann, the wonder and delight of young folks, and an ever popular favorite of the people, will appear at the opera house this evening. He will, as usual, be assisted by Madame Herrmann; Abdul Khan will also appear and give an exhibition of East Indian necromancy. Herrmann is without a rival in his line of entertainment, and those who like to be made to believe what they know is impossible and to have their sense of sight contradict their common sense, will find an evening spent under the magic influence of the conjurer's wand a very pleasant one.

There will be a number of other interesting features, including "Strobeika," Herrmann's latest and greatest illusion. "Strobeika," as presented by Herrmann, is based upon a Russian romance, one of the salient features of which is the escape from prison of a young officer of the guard, Ivan Ivanhoff, through the ingenuity of his fiancee, Strobeika, who, who in some manner obtained admission to his cell, loosed his shackles and chains, and herself assumed them, keeping up the delusion until Ivan was safely away. In Herrmann's illusion the substitution of Strobeika for the manacled prisoner, chained to the plank by the committee from the audience, is said to be much more difficult than was the original Strobeika's brave and ingenious trick. "New Black Art," "A Slave Girl's Dream," "Florine, the Child of the Air," and other novelties will form an interesting part of the programme.

Fire at Colorado City.

Our near neighbor, Colorado City, has been suffering from the fire fiend again, although this time it is not thought that fire bugs are at the bottom of it.

Saturday evening fire was discovered in the rear of the new Templeton block. Although somewhat scorched, the building escaped with but little damage.

About 2 o'clock Sunday morning fire was discovered in Mr. C. L. Smith's large barn on Lincoln avenue, and although the fire department made every effort to save it, the barn and its contents were destroyed. Among the property destroyed were two valuable horses and a wagon loaded ready for Cripple Creek. The loss is about $2,000.

A fire occurred at the Midland depot yesterday (Monday) morning at about 5:30 o'clock, which was promptly responded to by the department. The east end of the building was completely destroyed, but the office part was saved. The people of Colorado city would respectfully suggest to the Midland officials that now is the time for a new depot.

Bobby Gaylor as "Sport McAllister."

The attraction booked at the opera house Thursday evening is the great comedy success, "Sport McAllister, one of the 400." Says an exchange: that prince of fun-makers, Bobby Gaylor, is at the head of the organization, which for completeness is unsurpassed. The success attending this production is unsurpassed in the annals of farce comedy. The critics have been unanimous in their praise of the entertainment everywhere. Mr. Gaylor is a peculiar comedian with a personality entirely his own, and original in the extreme. An audience commences to laugh at him on his very first appearance and as he has the happy knack of being able to keep a continual flow of his laughing fluid among them, they laugh from the rise to the fall of the curtain. Manager Brady, who is conducting Mr. Gaylor through the country, has surrounded his star with a magnificent company and among the specialists in it are George Parker, the queen of American dancers; Charles W. Young, J. P. Carroll, Hugh Mack, Peter Randall, M. J. Sullivan, Clarance West, Harry McDargh, Misses Jennie St. Clare, May Gaylor, Bessie Gilbert and Irene Hernandez.

Manitou.

Smith & Allison are preparing to add a bowling alley to the Hiawatha.

Dr. G. N. Gardiner of Plain City, Kan., a brother of Mr. O. M. Gardiner of this city, is spending the holidays with him.

Mrs. Frances Redmon, who recently sold out her grocery business here, is spending the winter at her old home in the east.

The repainting and other improvements on the Cliff house are well under way and the hotel will be re-opened early in the spring.

Mr. J. H. Wolfe of the Continental house has established a short order house at Cripple Creek and has sent several wagon-loads of supplies to it. Mr. Wolfe is a skillful restaurateur and should have success in his venture, as there is a great demand for such an institution in the new mining camp.

Mr. H. F. Miller of Florissant, Colo., has just put on a freight line between Florissant and all points in the Cripple Creek mining district, and will give prompt and careful attention to all freight consigned to his care.

The January Forum.

The January number of The Forum contains two timely and interesting articles on the Louisiana Lottery: a full history of the company, explaining who the men are that have managed it, what its methods are, and the enormous amounts of money that it takes it, by John C. Wickliffe, a prominent member of the Anti-Lottery League and editor of the anti-lottery organ, The New Delta, and a strong indictment of the lottery by Judge Frank Moulton, of the Louisiana Court of Appeals. In view of the ill health of the pope and the discussion of the possibility of his removal from Rome, Professor Oncken, the distinguished German author, writes on "The Pope and the Future of the Papacy." Mr. Courtenay DeKalb, an American who has lived long in Brazil, discusses the late crisis there and its causes. This number of The Forum contains also a review of the trial of Dr. Briggs for heresy, together with a statement of other notable heresy trials in the United States, by the Rev. Dr. Philip Schaff of the Union Theological seminary; and following this is an article by Dr. Briggs himself on theological education and how it should be extended and improved the most notable contribution that Dr. Briggs has made to periodical literature. The discussion of pensions in connection with this number, General Fremont, one of the bravest soldiers of the Union army, writes "Time to Call a Halt on Pension Legislation," and Dr. J. S. Billings, of the surgeon general's office, presents interesting facts about the health of the survivors of the war. Judge Lambert Tree, late minister to Belgium, explains the treaty of Brussels for the suppression of the slave trade in Africa, which is now pending in the United States senate, and points out our duty in the matter. Prof. Ross, in an article in The Forum to show that the reformatory prison method had caused an increase of crime in Massachusetts, has called forth extensive discussion, and Mr. Warren F. Spaulding, secretary of the Massachusetts Prison association, writes in this number a reply, which is interesting because it shows that while certain crimes have undoubtedly increased, there has been a noticeable decrease in the more serious offenses which may be properly called crimes. Mr. George S. Coe, president of the American Exchange National bank in New York, writes on "Why the Silver Law Should be Repealed." There is a review of the secret ballot in thirty-three states, with an analysis of the law passed in each, by Mr. Joseph B. Bishop; and Mrs. Schuyler Van Rensselaer writes of the Development of Taste in the Building and Furnishing of American Homes. A notable contribution to this number of The Forum is a Christmas sermon, by Bishop Henry C. Potter, of New York, one of the most learned and eloquent of American preachers, who explains the meaning to modern life, of "Christ as the Light of the World."

A Screw Loose Somewhere.

Kingley—Say, old man, I have a great scheme for getting ahead of my wife, and it may do you some good. I go to her dressmaker and tell her to charge twice as much as she ordinarily would. Then I stand in for the difference, and my wife don't dare buy half the gowns she otherwise would.

Bingo—Yes, I tried that plan.

Kingley—How did it work?

Bingo—The dressmaker is suing me for the full amount. Cloak Review.

His Great Mistake.

She (after the ball)—Has papa asked you about your income?

He—Yes.

She—And you told him that little fib about the large salary?

He—Yes.

She—I'm so glad.

He—Well, I'm sorry. He borrowed fifty dollars from me on the spot.—Smith, Gray & Co.'s Monthly.

Ruling Figures.

"What are jokes bringing now?" he asked, as he entered the editor's office with some bulky envelopes under his arm.

"It depends on their nature, sir," replied the urbane editor. "We'd have to charge you seventy-five cents a line for ice cream jokes, for instance."—Truth.

Some Doubt About It.

Cholly—You seem all broken up, old chap.

Chappie—Yaas.

Cholly—What is the matter?

Chappie—I don't know, I am sure; but my man says he thinks I am in love.—New York Life.

Didn't Suit Her.

Briggs—I see that Granby had to send back the marble statue of his wife that he ordered.

Griggs—Why? Didn't she like it?

Briggs—No; she wanted one made of wearing a scarlet cloak.—Cloak Review.

In the Same Boat.

A beggar in rags and tatters held out his hand to a "gourmet" who was stepping out of the door of his club.

"Out of work! Done nothing the last twelve months! Your honor knows what that means!"—Frankfurter Zeitung.

An Electrical Refusal.

May—Your last suitor, Mr. Wait, seems very magnetic.

Belle—Yes, I gave him both poles.

May—What do you mean?

Bell—A positive negative.—Truth.

Misdestination.

Clubbedly (at the club)—That's the worst waiter I ever saw. I wonder where such an idiot came from?

Shiffer—I know where he is going to.—New York Sun.

Train 46, leaving at 3:35 p. m. on the Santa Fe, going east, now carries through Parlor Chair cars between Pueblo and Chicago, also a Chair Car between Denver and Canon City.

BEAUTIFUL OKLAHOMA.

The exciting incidents of the two great invasions of Oklahoma territory by boom seekers, in 1889 and 1891, have given that section distinguished prominence as a place in which to cheaply obtain one of Uncle Sam's farms. The lands recently opened are located in the Old Iowa, Sac and Fox and Pottawatomie reservations, lying directly east of Guthrie and Oklahoma City, on the A. T. & S. F. R. R. They now constitute counties "A" and "B" with Chandler and Tecumseh as respective county seats. Both large and rapidly growing towns. Claims can be bought at reasonable figures. For the raising of corn, cotton, wheat and fruit, Oklahoma is unexcelled.

Write to G. T. Nicholson, G. P. & T. A., Topeka, Kan., or J. P. Hall, Colorado Passenger Agent, Denver, Colorado, for a specially prepared folder giving full information relative to Beautiful Oklahoma.

A WINTER IN THE SOUTH.

A winter in the South—the very words conjure up delicious memories for those who have been there. The bright sunny skies, the dry bracing air and the warm sunshine is in decided contrast to the cold bleak North.

The great state of Texas is celebrated as one great broad winter resort in itself, but the following places are, besides, particularly beautiful: Fort Worth, with its mineral baths, healthful climate and good hotels; Austin, the beautiful Capital City; San Antonio, one of the few really historical places in our country; Houston, with its blooming roses, oleanders and groves of oranges and lemons, and Galveston with its delicious sea breezes. These are but a few of the delightful resorts of this highly favored region.

An escape from all the pains and discomforts of our rigorous weather, transported by magic from the region of snow and ice, to the fragrance of this summer-land, is now made possible and easy by the Denver, Texas & Ft. Worth Branch of the Union Pacific System, which runs through Pullman Palace Sleepers between Denver, Ft. Worth, Dallas, Shreveport and New Orleans, and offers exceedingly low excursion rates to all Southern cities from Denver, Pueblo, Colorado Springs and Trinidad. For a full description of Southern winter resorts, received over the Union Pacific System, or for excursion rates, apply to W. G. Rice, Union Pacific Ticket agent, office 14 Pike's Peak avenue, for a copy of the Union Pacific Winter Tours Folder.

The entertainment at the Christian church on New Year's eve promises to be an enjoyable affair. Some of our best musical and elocutionary talent participate, and Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works will be no small feature. An oyster supper and a "watch meeting" will also add to the enjoyment of those in attendance.

The Ruby King is getting out some very high grade ore, and after they get the drifts run so as to commence stoping, we look for this mine to be one of the heaviest shippers in Gunnison county. There have been three openings on the vein, and in all places show a large body of ruby ore. [Elk Mountain Pilot.

District-attorney Garrison yesterday morning filed complaints in the county court in sixteen different suits against gamblers of Colorado City and Manitou. These complaints are made under the state law, and the fines go to the school fund. Seven of the men were arraigned yesterday and four plead. They paid fines of $50 and costs, amounting in all to $58.10. Three were represented by Attorney Vannatta and decided to contest the suits. They were Robert Ford, Jas. Lindsey and Dick Bell. Service has not been made on the remainder.

The Christmas festival for the members of Grace Church Sunday school occurred last evening. The church had been handsomely decorated for the occasion, a large tree occupying a conspicuous place. Instead of giving presents this year the members contributed to the fund for the new organ. About $60 was contributed. There was an interesting programme of music, with addresses by Rector Keiffer and Superintendent Hunt.

The Denver Times of last evening that Mr. E. L. Byington, formerly superintendent of the schools of this city, had died in Denver yesterday of Bright's disease of the kidneys. Mr. Byington was for several years connected with the schools of this city, severing his connection about two years ago. He went to Boulder for one year, but for the last year has been living in Denver. Mr. Byington was about 40 years of age.
